 - If the sponsoring government appoints members of the Board, their appointment authority should be substantive
 - Absence of a Board is treated the same as if the sponsoring government appointed the voting majority of the Board
 - Defined contribution plans:
 - If the sponsoring government appoints members of the Board, their appointment authority should be substantive
 - Absence of a Board does not equate to appointing the voting majority of the Board

GASB Statement Nos. 84 & 97; Fiduciary activities

- A financial benefit or burden relationship exists if any one of these conditions exists:
 - PG is legally entitled to or can otherwise access the organization's resources

GASB Statement Nos. 84 & 97; Fiduciary activities

 - Approve the organization's levy, rates, taxes or other changes; OR
 - Approve the organization's issuance of bonded debt

Update on pending GASB statements

GASB Statement No. 87, Leases

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

	Effective dates
GASB 87; Leases	Fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2021, and all reporting periods thereafter
Implementation Guide 2019-3	Fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2021, and all reporting periods thereafter
Implementation Guide 2020-1	Fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2021, and all reporting periods thereafter
Implementation Guide 2021-1	Fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2021, and all reporting periods thereafter

What's in?

- A lease is defined as a contract that conveys control of the right to use another entity's nonfinancial asset (the underlying asset) as specified in the contract for a period of time in an exchange or exchange-like transaction
 - Any contract that meets this definition!

What's out?

- Intangible assets
- Biological assets
- Leases of inventory
- Service concession arrangement
- Underlying asset is financed with outstanding conduit debt, unless both the underlying asset and the conduit debt are reported by the lessor
- Supply contracts
- Lessors only – certain regulated leases

Intra-entity leases

- Blended component units
 - Provisions do not apply
 - Assets and debt are treated as the assets and debt of the primary government
- Discretely presented component units
 - Provisions apply
 - Separately display lease receivables/payables from other amounts due to/from the primary Government

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

Includes

- Any non-cancellable periods
- Periods covered by a lessee's or lessor's option to:
 - Extend the lease if the lessee or lessor is reasonably certain to exercise that option
 - Terminate the lease if the lessee or lessor is reasonably certain not to exercise that option

Excludes

- Cancellable periods – periods for which both the lessee and the lessor have an option to terminate the lease without permission from the other party (or if both parties have to agree to extend)

GASB Statement No. 87: Leases

- Short-term leases
 - A lease that, at the commencement of the lease term, has a maximum possible term under the lease contract of 12 months (or less), including any options to extend, regardless of their probability of being exercised. For a lease that is cancelable by either the lessee or the lessor, such as a rolling month-to-month lease or a year-to-year lease, the maximum possible term of the non-cancelable period, including any notice periods.
 - Note: this is considered equivalent to the current operating lease model

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Lessee recognition and measurement for leases other than short-term leases and contracts that transfer ownership
 - At the commencement of the lease term, a lessee should recognize a lease liability and an intangible right-to-use lease asset (a capital asset referred to as the lease asset)
- Lease liability – lessee should initially measure the lease liability at the present value of payments expected to be made during the lease term less any lease incentives.
 - Lease Incentives are (a) payments made to, or on behalf of, the lessee for which the lessee has a right of offset with its obligation to the lessor, or (b) other concessions granted to the lessee
 - Reduce lease liability as payments are made and recognize an outflow of resources for interest on the liability

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Lease Asset – a lessee initially should measure the lease asset as the sum of the following:
 - The amount of the initial measurement of the lease liability
 - Lease payments made to the lessor at or before the commencement of the lease term, less any lease incentives received from the lessor at or before the commencement of the lease term
 - Initial direct costs that are ancillary charges necessary to place the lease asset into service
 - Any initial direct costs that would be considered debt issuance costs, should be recognized as an expense in the period in which they are incurred

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Lessor recognition and measurement for leases other than short-term leases and contracts that transfer ownership
 - At the commencement of the lease term, a lessor should recognize a lease receivable and a deferred inflow of resources, except for short-term leases and transfer of ownership, as well as two additional exceptions:
 - If the underlying asset in a lease meets the requirements in Statement 72 to be reported as an investment measured at fair value
 - Certain regulated leases

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Lease asset measurement – lessor should measure the lease receivable at the present value of lease payments expected to be received during the lease term, reduced by any provision for estimated uncollectible amounts. Measurement of the lease receivable should include the following, if required by a lease:
 - Fixed payments
 - Variable payments that depend on an index or rate initially measured at the beginning of the lease term
 - Variable payments that are fixed in substance
 - Residual value guarantee payments that are fixed in substance
 - Any lease incentives payable to the lessee

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

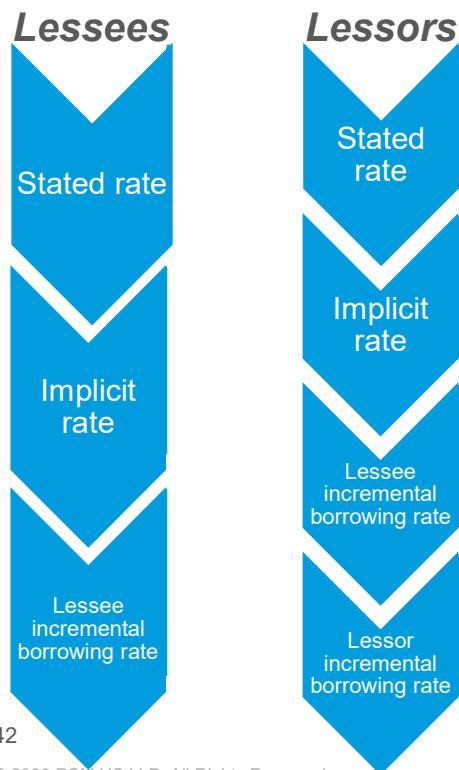

- Lease asset measurement, continued
 - Future lease payments to be received should be discounted using the interest rate the lessor charges the lessee
 - In subsequent financial reporting periods, the lessor should calculate the amortization of the discount on the lease asset and report that amount as an inflow of resources (example – interest revenue)
 - Triggers for potential remeasurement

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Deferred inflow of resources – a lessor initially should measure the deferred inflow of resources as follows:
 - The amount of the initial measurement of the lease receivable
 - Lease payments received from the lessee at or before the commencement of the lease term that relate to future periods, less any lease incentives paid to, or on behalf of, the lessee at or before the commencement of the lease term
- Underlying asset
 - A lessor should not derecognize the asset underlying the lease
 - A lessor should continue to apply other applicable guidance to the underlying asset, including depreciation and impairment
 - However, if the lease contract requires the lessee to return the asset in its original or enhanced condition, a lessor should NOT depreciate the asset during the lease term

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

Lease payments should be discounted using the interest rate the lessor charges the lessee. Lessees and lessor should consider the following in this analysis:

- If the lease contract contains a stated interest rate, the stated rate generally is used as the discount rate.
- If there is no stated rate (or if the stated rate is not the rate the lessor charges the lessee), the lessor should determine whether the rate implicit in the lease can be estimated.
- Lessees and lessors should use professional judgment to determine their best estimate for the interest rate, maximizing the use of observable information; for example, using the lessee's estimated incremental borrowing rate or published market rates for similar instruments.
- If there is no stated rate, and neither the implicit rate, nor the lessee's incremental borrowing rate are determinable, the lessor may use its own incremental borrowing rate.

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Remeasurement of the lease liability should occur if one or more of the following have occurred:
 - Change in the lease term
 - Likelihood of a residual value guarantee being paid has changed from reasonably certain to not reasonably certain, or vice versa.
 - Likelihood of a purchase option being exercised has changed from reasonably certain to not reasonably certain, or vice versa.
 - Change in the estimated amounts for payments already included in the measurement of the lease liability.
 - Change in the interest rate the lessor charges the lessee, if used as the initial discount rate.
 - A contingency, upon which some or all of the variable payments that will be made over the remainder of the lease term are based, is resolved such that those payments now meet the criteria for measuring the lease liability.

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Remeasurement of the lease liability (continued):
 - If liability is remeasured for any of the changes on the previous slide, the liability should also be adjusted for any change in an index or rate used to determine variable payments if the change is expected to significantly affect the amount of the liability since the previous measurement.
 - Discount rate should also be updated as part of the remeasurement if:
 - There is a change in lease term
 - An assessment of all relevant factors indicates that the likelihood of a purchase option being exercised has changed from reasonably certain to not reasonably certain or visa versa
 - Changes arising from amendments to a lease contract should be accounted for under the provisions of modifications or terminations

GASB Statement No. 87; Leases

- Contracts with multiple components
 - Lease and non-lease
 - Multiple underlying assets, differing major asset classes or lease terms
 - Allocation
 - Prices for individual components that are reasonable
 - If no prices or not reasonable use estimate based on observable information
 - Not practicable treat components as a single lease unit

Update on pending GASB statements

GASB Statement No. 91; Conduit debt obligations

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- Issued – May 2019
- Effective – Periods beginning after December 15, 2021 (December 31, 2022, June 30, 2022) earlier application encouraged
 - Provide a single method of reporting conduit debt obligations by issuers and eliminate diversity in practice associated with
 - Commitments extended by issuers
 - Arrangements associated with conduit debt obligations
 - Related note disclosures
 - Establish conduit debt is not a liability of the issuer
- IG 2020-1; 4.19 – 4.21

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- A conduit debt obligation is defined as a debt instrument having all of the following characteristics:
 - There are at least three parties involved (1) an issuer; (2) a third-party obligor and (3) a debt holder or debt trustee
 - The issuer and the third-party obligor are not within the same financial reporting entity
 - The debt obligation is not a parity bond of the issuer, nor is it cross-collateralized with other debt of the issuer
 - The third party obligor or its agent ultimately receives the proceeds from the debt issuance

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- All conduit debt obligations involve the issuer making a limited commitment. Some issuers extend additional commitments or voluntary commitments to support debt service in the event the third party is, or will be, unable to do so
- The issuer can extend an additional commitment; the issuer agrees to support debt service payments only in the event the third-party obligor is, or will be, unable to do so
 - Extending a moral obligation pledge
 - Extending an appropriation pledge
 - Extending a financial guarantee
 - Pledging its own property, revenue, or other assets as security

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- An issuer that has made an additional commitment should evaluate at least annually whether the recognition criteria in paragraphs 12, 13, 16, and 17 are met
 - Recognize a liability associated with an additional or voluntary commitment to support debt service payments and an expense in financial statements prepared using the economic resources measurement focus if qualitative factors indicate it is more likely than not that the issuer will support one or more debt service payments
 - More likely than not > 50%

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- Qualitative factors to assess whether it is more likely than not include, but aren't limited to, the following:
 - Third-party obligor initiating the process of entering into bankruptcy or financial reorganization
 - Third-party obligor breaching a debt contract in relation to the conduit debt obligation
 - Third-party obligor experiencing significant financial difficulty, such as failure to make payments to paying agents or trustees on a timely basis, significant investment losses, loss of a major revenue source
 - Termination of the project that was to be the source of funding for debt service payments
 - Litigation that would negatively affect the project

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- Qualitative factors to assess whether it is more likely than not include, but aren't limited to, the following (continued):
 - The issuers concern that its access to capital markets could be affected by a third-party obligor's default on an outstanding conduit debt obligation
 - The issuer's history of fulfilling its additional commitments to support debt service payments for other conduit debt obligations, including voluntarily supporting debt service payments
 - The issuer's ability or willingness to support debt service payments

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- Recognition and measurement using the economic resources measurement focus
 - Liability = the discounted present value of the best estimate of the future outflows expected to be incurred
 - Expense
- Recognition and measurement using the current financial resources measurement focus
 - Fund liability and an expenditure to the extent that the liability is normally expected to be liquidated with expendable available financial resources (when payment to support a conduit debt obligation is due and payable)

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- Arrangements (often characterized as leases) associated with conduit debt obligations where capital assets are constructed or acquired with the proceeds of a conduit obligation and used by third-party obligors in the course of their activities should not be reported as leases by the issuer nor should they recognize a liability for the related conduit debt obligations or a receivable for the payments related to those arrangements. In addition, the following provisions apply:
 - If the title passes to the third-party obligor at the end of the arrangement, an issuer should not recognize a capital asset

- In addition, the following provisions apply (continued):
 - If the title does not pass to the third-party obligor and the third party has exclusive use of the entire capital asset during the arrangement, the issuer should not recognize a capital asset until the arrangement ends.
 - If the title does not pass to the third-party obligor and the third party has exclusive use of only portions of the capital asset during the arrangement, the issuer, at the inception of the arrangement, should recognize the entire capital asset and a deferred inflow of resources.
 - Deferred inflow of resources should be reduced and an inflow recognized in a systematic and rational manner of the term of the arrangement.

GASB Statement No. 91 – Conduit debt obligations

- An issuer should disclose the following in the notes to the financial statements:
 - A general description of the issuer's conduit debt obligation
 - A general description of the issuer's limited commitment(s)
 - A general description of the issuer's voluntary commitment(s)
 - A general description of the issuer's additional commitment(s), including
 - The legal authority and limits for extending the commitment(s)
 - The length of time of the commitment(s)
 - Arrangements, if any, for recovering payments from the third-party
 - The aggregate outstanding principal amount of all conduit debt obligations that share the same type of commitment(s) at the end of the reporting period

GASB Statement No. 94, Public-private and public-public partnerships and availability payment arrangements

GASB Statement No. 94 – Public-private and public-public partnerships and availability payment arrangements

- Issued – March 2020
- Effective – fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2022 (June 30, 2023, December 31, 2023); earlier application encouraged
- Require governments to report assets and liabilities related to PPPs and to disclose information about PPP transactions
- PPPs that meet the definition of a lease apply the guidance in GASB Statement No. 87; Leases, as amended, if existing assets of the transferor, that are not required to be improved by the operator as part of the PPP arrangement, are the only underlying PPP assets and the PPP does not meet the definition of a Service Concession Arrangement

GASB Statement No. 94 – Public-private and public-public partnerships and availability payment arrangements

- Public-private and public-public partnership arrangements (PPP)
 - An arrangement in which a government (transferor) contracts with an operator (a governmental or nongovernmental entity) to provide public services by conveying control of the right to operate or use a nonfinancial asset, such as infrastructure or other capital asset, for a period of time in an exchange or exchange-like transaction
- An availability payment arrangement (APA):
 - An arrangement in which a government compensates an operator for services that may include designing, constructing, financing, maintaining, or operating an underlying nonfinancial asset for a period of time in an exchange or exchange-like transaction

GASB Statement No. 94 – Public-private and public-public partnerships and availability payment arrangements

- A PPP meets the definition of a service concession arrangement (SCA) when:
 - The transferor conveys to the operator the right and related obligation to provide public services through the use and operation of an underlying PPP asset in exchange for significant consideration (i.e. an up-front payment, installment payments, a new facility, or improvements to an existing facility);
 - The operator collects and is compensated by fees from third parties;
 - The transferor determines or has the ability to modify or approve which services the operator is required to provide, to whom the operator is required to provide the services, and the prices or rates that can be charged for the services; and
 - The transferor is entitled to significant residual interest in the service utility of the underlying PPP asset at the end of the arrangement

GASB Statement No. 94 – Public-private and public-public partnerships and availability payment arrangements

- Transferor
 - Recognize the underlying PPP asset as an asset in the financial statements
 - If PPP asset is not owned by the transferor or is not the underlying asset of a SCA, transferor should recognize a receivable measured based on the operator's estimated carrying value of the underlying PPP asset as of the expected date of the transfer in ownership
 - Recognize a receivable for installment payments, if any, to be received from the operator in relation to the PPP
 - Measured at the present value of the payments expected to be received during the PPP term
 - Recognize a deferred inflow of resources for the consideration received or to be received as part of the PPP
 - Revenue recognized over a systematic and rational manner over the PPP term

GASB Statement No. 94 – Public-private and public-public partnerships and availability payment arrangements

 - A receivable for installment payments and a deferred inflow of resources to account for a PPP in financial statements prepared using the current financial resources measurement focus
 - Revenue recognized in a systematic and rational manner over the PPP term
- Operator
 - Recognize a liability for installment payments, if any, to be made to the transferor
 - Present value of the payments expected to be made during the PPP term
 - Recognize a deferred outflow of resources for the consideration provided or to be provided to the transferor as part of the PPP

 - Provides capitalization criteria for payments other than subscription payment
 - Requires certain note disclosures

GASB Statement No. 96 – Subscription-based information technology arrangements

- SBITA is a contract that conveys control of the right to use another party's information technology software, alone or in combination with tangible capital assets (the underlying IT assets), as specified in the contract for a period of time in exchange or exchange-like transaction.
- Term includes noncancelable term under the contract as well as optional periods to extend or terminate SBITA if it is reasonably certain that the government or the vendor will exercise the option.
 - Reassess options exercised or not exercised were different than expensed or an extension or termination of contract

GASB Statement No. 96 – Subscription-based information technology arrangements

- Recognize a right-to-use subscription asset and subscription liability
- Recognize liability at the commencement of the term (when the asset is placed in service)
 - Measure at the present value of subscription payments expected to be made during the subscription term less any incentives receivable from the vendor
 - Interest rate using the rate used by the vendor or the government's incremental borrowing rate, if the interest rate is not readily determinable
 - Amortization of the discount rate recognized as outflow of resources (i.e., interest expense)
 - Liability should be remeasured if there is a change in subscription term or amounts, change in vendor interest rate used as the initial discount, or a contingency is resolved.

GASB Statement No. 96 – Subscription-based information technology arrangements

- Subscription asset
 - Measures as the sum of the following
 - The initial subscription liability amount
 - Payments made to the SBITA vendor before commencement of the subscription term (reclassified from prepayment (asset) to subscription asset at start of term)
 - Capitalizable implementation costs
 - Less any incentives received from the SBITA vendor at or before the commencement of the subscription terms
 - Amortization of the asset should be recognized in a systematic and rational manner as an outflow of resources over the subscription term
 - If the liability is remeasured, the asset should generally be adjusted by the same amount

GASB Statement No. 96 – Subscription-based information technology arrangements

Preliminary Project Stage

- Conceptual formulation and evaluation of alternatives,
- Determination of the existence of needed technology, and the
- Final selection of alternatives for the SBITA
- Outlays should be expensed as incurred.

Initial Implementation Stage

- Ancillary charges related to designing the chosen path, such as configuration, coding, testing, and installation associated with the government's access to the underlying IT assets.
- Other ancillary charges necessary to place the subscription asset into service.
- Stage is completed when the subscription asset is placed into service.
- Outlays should be capitalized as part of the subscription asset. If no asset (ST SBITA), expense as incurred.

Operation and Additional Implementation Stage

- Maintenance, troubleshooting, and other activities associated with the government's ongoing access to the underlying IT assets.
- Additional implementation activities, such as those related to additional modules, that occur after the subscription asset is placed into service.
- Outlays should be expensed as incurred, except for those that meet one of the capitalization criteria in GASB 96 ¶40.

GASB Statement No. 96 – Subscription-based information technology arrangements

- Contracts containing multiple components
 - Account for each component as a separate SBITA or nonsubscription component and allocate price to each component (for example, based on stand-alone selling prices)
 - If it is not practical to determine a best estimate for price allocation, those components should be accounted for as a single SBITA.
- Short-term SBITA exception
 - Maximum term of 12 months.
 - Recognized as outflows of resources
- Contract combinations – combine if negotiated with a single objective or if price in one contract depends on price of another

GASB Statement No. 96 – Subscription-based information technology arrangements

- Modifications and terminations
 - Modifications
 - Account for as a separate contract if government is given an additional asset by accessing more underlying more IT assets not included in original contract and the increase in payments is reasonable
 - Account for other modifications by remeasuring the liability and adjusting the asset.
 - Terminations
 - Account for as a termination if an amendment decreases the government's right to use assets (for example, shortened term or assets are reduced)
 - Reduce asset and liability and recognize gain or loss for the difference

GASB Statement No. 96 – Subscription-based information technology arrangements

- Disclosures
 - Descriptive information about its SBITAs (other than short term)
 - Amount of subscription asset, accumulated amortization, and other payments not included in the measurement of the subscription liability
